Report on service learning Physiology-1, 2020111 1st semesters, 1434 H

In an effort to achieve objectives of strategic plan of KFU and COCP in leadership of community engagement, and due to mutual collaboration between king Faisal university and general administration of teaching in Al Ahsa (school health sector), a team of COCP students (59 male students and 41 female students) with their supervisors (4 male faculties and 3 female faculties) had visited 4 male secondary schools (Heraa-Al Haramen- king Khalid- Al Bandarya) with 3 female secondary schools (The first- seventeen- Thirteen ) on two consecutive days 17-18/2/1434 H.

The objective of the service learning activity was to measure arterial blood pressure for students and staff of these secondary schools and to spot out those who need further health care.

In these visits COCP students measure arterial blood pressure for 225 male students and staff and 150 female students and staff.

Recommendation as outcome of this activity:

1. Repeating these visits in the near future as it raises health awareness in the community.
2. Date of the coming visits must be little bit earlier than the current one (as it was one week before final exams of the 1st semester) to ensure more student participation.

3. Blood glucose, cholesterol and other important health parameters must be included in the future activities.
4. Pre visit direct contact with the specified schools to assure time of the visits.
5. Putting in mind the number of the students and the actual capacity of bus specified for students transportation.

Targets gains of this activity:

1. Raising the spirit of community engagement among students of COCP and strengthening of the relation between them and their past learning environment (Secondary Schools).
2. Putting a strong correlation between what students have learned in lecture halls and clinical application on their colleagues in secondary schools.
3. Raising students self confidence as they had the feeling they are helping their community and amplification of being part of their university and having real understanding of its role in community engagement services.
4. Increasing the spirit of COCP faculty collaboration of the 3 departments sharing in students' supervision.
5. High ratio of COCP students sharing in this activity more than 99% (only one male student did not share as he was surgically operated).
